

Worksheet

(To be used in conjunction with the Training Manual)

Heeling

This is the normal heeling position of the dog in the picture.

The dog has moved to the shown position. How many marks will you take off and why?

---

---

---

The dog has now moved to the following position. How many marks will you take off and why?

---

---

---

---

---

---

What fault is this dog exhibiting now?

---

How many points would you take off in Beginners or Novice if the dog did all of its heeling round as shown?

---

What if the dog only did this three times in the round?

---

What fault is this dog exhibiting?

---

How many points would you take off in Beginners or Novice if the dog did all of its heeling round as shown?

---

What if the dog only did this three times in the round?

---

What fault is this dog exhibiting?

---

How many points would you take off in Beginners or Novice if the dog did all of its heeling round as shown?

---

What if the dog only did this three times in the round?

---

The handler in this picture is having trouble moving her left leg. What fault is the dog exhibiting?
How many marks would you deduct if this occurred twice during a round?

---

How many marks would you deduct if the dog remained in this position for the whole round?

---

What is wrong with the heeling position of this dog. If the fault occurred for the whole round how many marks would you take off?

---

The dog only moves into this position twice. How many marks are deducted at Beginners and Novice level?

---

The dog's position has worsened. If the fault occurred for the whole round how many marks would you take off?

---

The dog only moves into this position twice. How many marks are deducted at Beginners and Novice level?

---

What fault is this dog exhibiting?

---

Would you say the dog is exhibiting the fault to a major degree?

---

How many points would you deduct if the dog exhibited this fault twice during a Beginners round?

---

What about at Test B level?

---

It's Beginners and the dog has been left behind at the start of heel on lead. What are you going to deduct?

---

The dog exhibits this fault three times during its heel on lead. How much are you going to deduct?

---

The dog comes to its first halt in its heel on lead round in Beginners. You notice something. What is it?

---

The handler continues to make the same fault as the dog is heeling for all of its round. How many marks do you deduct?

---

What if the fault only occurred once?

---

This dog is in Beginners. It is supposed to be heeling. What is it doing instead?

---

The dog exhibited this fault on three occasions during its round. What are you going to deduct?

---

What if it did it for all of the heel free?

---

This dog and handler are trying to execute a left turn. What's going wrong?

---

What are you going to deduct for a left turn such as this in Novice?

---

The dog is executing an about turn in Test A. Two faults are exhibited. What are they?

---

---

What marks are you going to deduct?

---

In this picture the handler is making a fault. The fault is occurring after a turn. What is the fault?

---

How many marks are you going to deduct in Novice?

---

It is Test A. The dog is just completing an about turn right turn. List any faults you can see occurring.

---

How many points are you going to deduct?

---