

Recall – Worksheets to be used in conjunction with Training Manual

This dog is in Beginners. It has just completed the present in the recall.

What fault is the dog exhibiting?

---

How many marks are you going to deduct?

---

This dog is in Beginners. It has just completed the present in the recall.

What fault is the dog exhibiting?

---

How many marks are you going to deduct?

---

This dog is in Beginners. It has just completed the present in the recall.

What fault is the dog exhibiting?

---

How many marks are you going to deduct?

---

The dog has executed the Beginners recall. Has any fault occurred. If so, what is it?

---

How many points would you deduct for the fault?

---

The Beginners recall once again. What is the fault?

---

How many points are you going to deduct?

---

The dog has executed the Beginners recall. Has any fault occurred. If so, what is it?

---

How many points would you deduct for the fault?

---

Notice the position of the handler's feet and body. What fault do you think could have occurred for the handler to be positioned in such a way?

---

Is it a fault? If so, what points would you deduct?

---

This dog is executing the finish of the Beginners recall. What fault is occurring?

---

How many marks will you deduct?

---

Another fault is occurring in the finish of the Beginners recall. What is the fault?

---

What deduction are you going to make?

---

This dog has just presented in the Beginners recall. Do you see any fault occurring? If so, what is it?

---

How many points will you deduct?

This dog is executing the Beginners recall. He is on his way to the handler. What fault is occurring?

---

How many points will you deduct?

---

This dog is completing the pick-up in the Test A recall. Can you see any faults occurring? What are the faults?

---

What points will you deduct?

---

The pickup in the Test A recall is being executed. What faults are occurring?

---

How many marks will you deduct?

---